DETAILS

With both wine and beer industries growing worldwide, these products have nowhere to go but up.

The Toad pumpover device is one of the most efficient and labor saving products in the market today for red wine fermentation. Lightweight, durable, excellent cap coverage - it is the wine pumpover device of choice for America's largest wineries. 20 years of solid sales with industry recognition has this device selling itself.

The Rackit-teeer was originally designed for the burgeoning barrel beer brewing industry, and has quickly been adopted by brewers and winemakers alike as the best choice for racking their products out of barrels. Stainless steel construction and a patented locking system reduces labor costs as well as lowering pressurized gas costs.

The patent for the Rackit-teeer is so broad that several other products have the potential for market development.
